schemes and working of the Panchayati Raj in the States;

(b) if so, whether Government are also considering granting more powers to Panchayati Raj institutions; and

(c) if so, the details thereof?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF RURAL DEVELOPMENT (SHRI ANNASAHEB M.K. PATIL): (a) to (c) Review of implementation of its schemes is an ongoing process in the Ministry of Rural Development. Article 243-G of the Constitution vests the State Legislature with powers to endow the Panchayats with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as institutions of self-Government. States are at various levels of devolution of powers to Panchayati Raj Institutions, the Central Government continues to persuade States through correspondence with the State Governments and discussions at meeting with Ministers of Panchayati Raj and State Secretaries concerned to devolve more powers on Panchayati Raj Institutions. The Ministry of Rural Development on its part has also ensured that Centrally Sponsored Rural Development Schemes such as 'SWAJALDHARA', Sampoorna Grameen Rozgar Yojana (SGRY) and 'HARYALI' (Watershed Development) are implemented through Panchayati Raj Institutions.
